Product Tutorials

DEADLINE: 1 September 2007

Introduction

The Product Tutorials are presentations allowing exhibitors to educate attendees on the solutions provided by their product or service. These 45-minute presentations provide exhibiting companies the opportunity to present educational content to attendees. We highly recommend your session be presented in a case study format as it is the format attendees prefer. The Product Tutorial theatre will be located on the exhibition floor and sessions will be scheduled during exhibit hours. Product Tutorials are available exclusively to The World of Health IT exhibitors.

The World of Health IT Will Provide:

- 45-minute presentation timeslot
- The theatre will be equipped with a Plasma screen to hook in your laptop, podium, wired microphone, theatre-style seating for 30 people, and a table to distribute handouts. (Additional audiovisual equipment is available for rental from the official audiovisual contractor.)
- Graphics placed outside each theatre containing session information
- Marketing of your session in the following media:
 - The World of Health IT Website
 - Onsite Guide

Marketing Your Session

Marketing your session to attendees before and during the conference is critical to creating interest in your presentation and building attendance at your session. Below are suggested approaches to marketing your session:

- Promote your session on your corporate website and include your session topic, a brief description, the session speaker, the session date and time, and the session location.
- Send a marketing piece to pre-registered attendees telling them about your session. Each exhibiting company will have the opportunity to purchase the attendee mailing list.
- Mention your session on literature that you have printed to distribute at your booth.

Submissions

The session title, session abstract, and presenter information can be submitted to Christina Luke at cluke@worldofhealthit.org by the participating company beginning 17 August 2007.

The timeline for the Product Tutorial submissions is as follows:

- 31 August 2007: Deadline to submit presenter information, including credentials, title, and company, as well as the session title and abstract. This information will be included in the onsite brochures that will be given to all attendees and will be placed on our Website. Session information submitted after this date will not be included in onsite materials.
 - 1 October 2007: Presentation guidelines and tips will be e-mailed to presenters and primary contact.
- All applications must be accompanied by full payment. A timeslot will not be assigned until full payment is received. Approved sessions are assigned on a first-come, first-served basis; we will not hold timeslots without application and payment.

Definition of a Case Study

A case study focuses on a specific product and provides a detailed review or analysis that captures the background, process, outcomes, successes, failures, and lessons learned. The case study may include qualitative or quantitative data, or both. The case study provides an opportunity to explore a single product in depth, and to strengthen problem-solving and decision-making skills.

Case studies are:

- Educational in nature as opposed to having a sales or marketing angle.
- Provide unbiased data and analysis regarding a particular product.
- Presented by an individual from the client organization who has had experience with the product.
- Informative and assist potential clients in making an educated decision about the product.
- Identify the strengths and weaknesses of a particular product.

Case Study Presentation Guidelines

- Identify a problem or need that the client has.
- Identify the specific product that was put in place to respond to that challenge or need.
- Identify how effective the product was in addressing that challenge or need.
- State client's overall experience with the product.
- Lend credibility to your session by having an individual from the client organization that has direct experience with the specific product conduct the presentation.
- Include a 1- or 2-page summary with key information from the actual case study report prepared by the client organization. The case study report contains information that is valuable to potential clients.

Successful Case Study Tips

- Handouts should be distributed to complement your presentation.
- The Product Tutorials are meant to be a forum in which exhibitors can present the benefits of their products in an educational format. Information about third parties (competitors) should be left out of your presentation unless prior written permission is obtained. Comments and statements regarding other companies that could be seen as defamatory or libelous should be left out of presentations. HIMSS does not assume liability for any presentation content.
